PROPOSED CONGRESS THEME

Rethinking Psychology towards the Science of High Impact

Psychology is facing many new challenges in its endeavor to create and disseminate the knowledge of high-impact that is needed for solving the 'tough issues' in the real-world. In that regard, we psychologists must rethink what psychology has been, what it is now, and what it will become. Our proposed theme reflects the recognition that now is a good time to address this critical issue, and that ICP2024 would be a fertile environment for setting a new path and discussing the 'Why's and 'How's of psychological science.

WHY KOREA? WHY SEOUL?

We propose a balanced and affordable budget, targeting a total of 8,000 participants. To ensure the financial security of the Congress, we have guaranteed fund in the amount of 400,000USD from our government and expect to be able to raise another 400,000USD from global corporation including Samsung, Hyundai, LG, POSCO and many others. There are a large number of home-stay networks available in the Congress region. Gradual students will also be eligible for various forms of travel awards and 'Young Psychologist Award.'

Strong Support from Regional Partners and the Korean Government:

We have obtained official support from our regional partners, including ASEAN Regional Union of Psychological Science (ARUPS), Asian Association of Social Psychology (AASP), Asian Association of Health Psychology (AAHP), Japanese Psychological Association (JPA), and Chinese Psychological Society (CPS). We have also obtained consent from more than 20 renowned scholars to participate in our International Scientific Committee (ISC). The ISC, which we will continue to expand, consists of scholars from 17 different countries connecting the Middle East, Europe, Africa, Asia, North America, and Oceania.

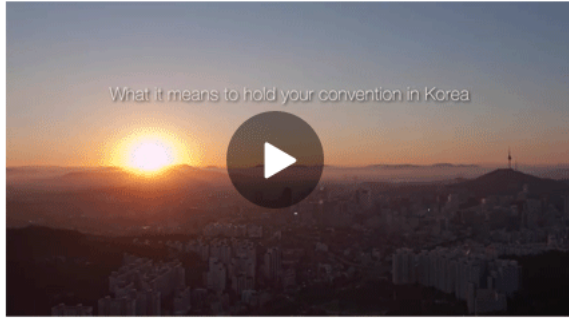

Symbolic Values

Rising up from nothing more than the ashes of war in less than half a century, Korea's remarkable growth has clearly shown a cultural and professional capacity to meet challenges and transform adversities into opportunities. This is reminiscent of the history of our young science which is now burgeoning into the science of high impact. In that sense, hosting the ICP in Korea holds additional symbolic value.
